Charging Batteries with Solar Power or a Wind Turbine

An advanced charge controller tracks power by measuring the voltage and adjusting the current to get maximum power transfer with prevailing light conditions. This is made possible with maximum power point tracking (MPPT). Figure 2-25 illustrates the voltage and current source from a solar cell with varying sunlight. Optimal power is available at the voltage knee where the dropping voltage line meets the vertical power line. MPPT determines this point.

How to use solar power to charge batteries efficiently

When available solar power is inadequate to meet the power requirements of the battery charger, input voltage regulation reduces the battery charge current. This reduces the load on the solar panel to maintain the panel voltage at VMP, maximising the panel output power. This method of achieving peak panel efficiency is called maximum power point control (MPPC).
